

Different Ways to Play Photography Bingo

1. Traditional Bingo

Use the Bingo Caller Card. Print two copies of the caller card. Cut/Separate the squares from one and put them in a container to pull from. Use the other card to mark off the cards that have been pulled. But...unlike regular bingo where the players just mark off the called words, for Photography Bingo they need to Have and Show an image that matches the call. Rules can vary by how you want to handle - will you allow old images on your phone to be used for the challenge? Or do your players get a specific time frame per call to make an image that matches? In the end the players need to show their checked off card AND the images that match the called cards.

2. Scavenger Style Bingo

For this one you can ignore the Caller Card. Players will look at their card, and take pics that will allow them to check off 5 squares (or two lines? or require the whole card?). For this one I would suggest that the photos have to be new - from the start of the game. To get the win players will need to show the images they created during the game timeframe that match the checked squares.

Want to ramp it up a bit? Make sure there is a prize for the winner!
